Profile

I'm Carlos, A Web Designer/Developer in Orlando, Florida.

I started designing at the age of 21 for a small recording studio. What all started as a hobby that derived from my love of music, became the passion that evolved into my profession.

As my skills continued to grow, I began creating websites for small businesses, and I was given an opportunity to work for a web-based marketing company in 2006. I was quickly promoted to Lead Web developer and was ecstatic.

I continued my work there for a few years before I decided to venture out on my own and gave freelancing a shot. It's been a wonderful challenge to keep up with the constantly changing web technologies and designs. Now, having over 20 years of experience in my field, along with my continuous learning and growth within the industry, I am ready for my next venture and I am confident I will be a great fit wherever land.
